WILD STALLION IS CAPTURED NEAR SAN JOSE MOUNTAINS

Big Sorrell Stallion Which Has Been Roaming the Hills for Years in Northern Sonora Caught by Cattle Company.

No longer will the wild sorrel stallion of the Cananea's play havoc with law abiding and gentle animals of his kind; no longer will the horse herds of the Cananea Cattle company be stampeded and lost for days and days; no longer will the American cowboy and Mexican vaquero of Northern Sonora tell romantic stories of this justly celebrated horse in the past tense; for he has been captured.

Roland Curry, foreman of the Cananea Cattle company, accompanied by his Mexican cowboys, captured the handsome sorrel a day or two ago in the foothills of the San Jose mountains. The animal is now in the corral at the San Pedro ranch.

For years the sorrel has been the object of search on the part of the employes of the Cananea Cattle company and has been the background for many stories told of his prowess. He has been compared to the hero-horse of one of Thompson-Seaton's animal stories. His record, if it could be transcribed to paper, would probably brand him as a particularly bad outlaw among horses; and one who has caused more havoc among herds than any other stallion in the state of Sonora.

For several years he has been seen at various times in the San Jose mountains. Usually he led a band of outlaw horses, seemingly holding absolute sway over their goings and comings. Most of the animal's fellows have been captured but up until this time the "punchers" had been within roping distance and upon but few occasions have they been able to get within shooting distance of the leader.

During the several revolutions which have shocked Sonora, in the past five years, the big sorrel has figured prominently in several stories. It has been said that, on one occasion, the corral of the San Pedro ranch were opened by a score of bandits and all of the mounts driven off. They passed by the foothills of the San Jose mountains. At this juncture, according to the story, while the sun was just leaving the western horizon for a visit to the far East, and the last rays of the day were flitting on the western slopes of the mountains, a phantom, sorrel horse, with head and tail erect, poised himself on a raise some distance from the driven band of horses. Suddenly the horse neighed. The herd stopped. Then, of a sudden, the phantom darted into the canyon and the herd broke and followed him.

The bandits were so frightened by the sudden appearance of the sorrel that, for several minutes, they made no attempt to follow. When they did the herd and its leader were far into the hills and the loot gone. Cowboys of the Cananea Cattle company, later, rounded up most of the mounts but were unable to catch the leader.

Many another story of the stallion's outlaw career might be told. Of his lineage nothing can be learned. There are many guesses but they sound too fictitious to repeat. What will be done with the animal, now that he is captured, can only be conjectured. It is improbable that he can be domesticated and it is also doubtful whether any of the "busters" of the big cattle company will make much of an attempt to handle him.

HUNT PARTY GIVEN GREAT RECEPTION IN CITY OF BISBEE

Candidate for Governor on the Democratic Ticket, With Others of Party, Appear at City Park Sunday in Big Rally.

Governor George W. P. Hunt and his party of candidates Sunday received one of the greatest receptions ever accorded visitors in the District. From the minute they appeared on the top of the Divide coming into the city, their progress was a testimonial of the esteem in which they are held by a large proportion of the people of the community. The rally at the park was perhaps the largest and most enthusiastic ever held in Cochise county.

The party, consisting of the Governor, Congressman Carl Hayden, Chas. R. Howe, tax commissioner, Sidney P. Osborn, secretary of state, and Wiley Jones, attorney general, was met at the top of the Divide by a score of automobiles. A large truck carried a band and at the crest greeted the candidates with a selection of music.

When the party arrived opposite the Doyle House in Tombstone Canyon thirteen shots were fired, high on the south side of the Canyon. It was the Governor's salute. The band walked from there into Bisbee and led the parade through the downtown streets and to the Copper Queen Hotel.

L. R. Whitney, city attorney, presided at the rally, which started about 2:30. On the platform, besides the state candidates, were several county candidates, W. E. Cleary and other notables. Governor Hunt was the first on the program and gave one of his best talks. He spoke extemporaneously and was frequently interrupted by the crowd with gracious applause.

Carl Hayden was next on the program and gave an excellent address on the national issues in the campaign. His talk was to a greater or less extent, a repetition of the talk he made at Lowell during the week. This is also the case of the other candidates. The congressman was followed by Charles R. Howe, tax commissioner, Sidney P. Osborn, secretary of state, Mrs. Frances Munds, state senator from Yavapai county, Wiley E. Jones, attorney general, and by William B. Cleary, of Bisbee, who closed the rally.

It was estimated that close to 2000 people heard the speakers during the afternoon and the rally was declared by all to have been the most enthusiastic held any place in the state during the campaign.

The party left Bisbee Sunday night on the Golden State for Tucson. Yesterday morning they went to Nogales and held a rally at that point last night.

"THE FALL OF A NATION" THE GREATEST FILM MASTERPIECE; TO BE SHOWN TWO MORE DAYS AT THE ORPHEUM THEATRE; IS IMPRESSIVE PLEA FOR ADEQUATE PREPAREDNESS

SCENE FROM "THE FALL OF A NATION", PLAYING AT THE ORPHEUM.

Of the many features photoplays which have appeared at the various Warren District theatres in the past, "The Fall of a Nation," now playing at the Orpheum, is the greatest of all, except one—"The Birth of a Nation." Thomas Dixon is the author of both and in the former was aided by Victor Herbert, the composer.

"The Fall of a Nation" is a gigantic plea for adequate preparedness on the part of the United States. Several pretty parallel love stories run throughout the feature and dress up what would otherwise be very dry

The battle scenes, picturing military movements on a large scale and showing the workings of the large field guns now in use on European battlefields, are wonderful and worth while in themselves. They can be rationally said to eclipse, in this department, those which featured the "Birth of a Nation."

"The Fall of a Nation" plays here at the Orpheum, this afternoon and evening and Wednesday afternoon and evening. The picture is in eight reels and no one should miss the opportunity of seeing a real film masterpiece.
